A DAY IN THE PARK WITH MOM

As the largest park system in America, JaxParks maintains nearly 400 parks and recreational spaces offering you the opportunity for a wide range of exciting and memorable experiences. In addition to traditional neighborhood and regional parks, our park spaces include 22 Community Centers conveniently located throughout the city. You can explore the mystery and beauty of nature at any of our 15 Environmental Parks. Pursue your personal fitness goals by working out at one of several JaxParks Fitness Centers and Gymnasiums or swimming at one of our more than 30 Swimming Pools. JaxParks is also home to seven Specialty Parks, each boasting its own unique attractions including hiking and biking trails, a dedicated skateboarding facility, camping areas, waterfront amenities and even a museum. It is our sincere hope that you and your family find the time to take full advantage of everything JaxParks has to offer!

Message from our Mayor

Dear Citizens:

We are happy to provide this JaxParks Directory and Activities Guide to help you discover, or rediscover Jacksonville!

Our park system is one of our greatest assets and with nearly 400 parks and recreational spaces in Duval County, I am incredibly proud that it is the largest in the nation. From riverfront parks to trails, playgrounds to ball fields, community centers to kayak launches, and swimming pools to gymnasiums, our parks offer so much for the residents and families of this great city.

This annual guide has been developed to help you learn more about our beautiful parks, unique offerings and amenities. Citizens of all ages can utilize this guide to learn more about:

- After-school programs
- Sports and recreational programs
- Health and wellness programs
- Camps
- Arts and creativity programs

In addition to the recreational offerings, our parks are a great way to build and promote healthy lifestyles. In this guide, we feature several parks with running, biking and hiking trails. Residents who commit to joining my Journey to One campaign can visit these locations to record their monthly "Mayorthon" miles. I encourage you to go to page six to learn more about Journey to One activities that are designed to ensure every citizen in every ZIP code lives well.

Throughout the year, we offer many exciting programs and activities. I encourage you and your family to take advantage of them time and time again. Be sure to share your favorite locations at #MyOneThing on coj.net.

Get out there. Find your park. Enjoy our city. I look forward to seeing you!

Happy trails,

Lenny Curry
Mayor

EVERY ONE IN EVERY ZIP CODE LIVES WELL

EXERCISE – To promote an active lifestyle, Mayor Curry encourages citizens to walk or run 26.2 miles a month. You can find free tools to help track your progress at JourneytoOne.com. You're also invited to join us each month for a "Mayorthon" walk through one of Jacksonville's beautiful parks.

NUTRITION - Good eating habits are critical to living well. The Florida Department of Health in Duval County's 5-2-1-0 initiative provides resources and advice to lead healthy, active lives through four simple daily practices. Find out more at 5210jax.org

WEIGHT – Mission One Million, an initiative led by the Duval County Medical Society Foundation and the Mayor's Council on Fitness & Well-being, challenges Jacksonville citizens to collectively lose one million pounds through exercise and proper nutrition. Learn more at 904MissionOneMillion.com SAFETY – From enjoying our parks to everyday activities, citizens deserve to feel safe. Public safety is one of the City's top priorities, including prioritizing strategies to improve pedestrian and bicycle safety throughout Jacksonville.

Join the Journey to One

Jacksonville is on a journey and it needs all of us to get where we're going. Out of Florida's 67 counties, Jacksonville ranks 48th for quality health outcomes. That 2016 score from the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation is based on dozens of factors, including physical and mental health, health behaviors, environment and more.

In an effort to improve Jacksonville's health rankings, Mayor Lenny Curry joined U.S. Surgeon General Vivek Murthy and local community leaders to launch Journey to One in April 2016.

"As someone who exercises daily, I know the benefits of an active lifestyle. As mayor, I know the benefits of a healthy community," said Mayor Curry. "Research tells us that the health of a city is defined by the well-being of its citizens."

Journey to One's mission is to ensure that every one in every ZIP code lives well. The initiative aims to reach its goal by addressing wellness in two key areas: personal health and community health.

Each of us is presented with decisions that affect our personal health and wellness every day. From deciding what to eat (and how much), to choosing whether to watch TV versus walking in a park, we make many daily choices that impact our overall well-being. Journey to One recognizes that each of us has a responsibility to improve our personal health.

In addition to our individual choices, our community surroundings affect our health. Is there ready access to healthy foods? Are there safe places to walk and be active? Mayor Curry says city leaders are responsible to improve our community health by addressing issues like blight and public safety, both of which can lead to increased health risks.

Journey to One offers several resources to help you work toward your personal health goals (see left). JaxParks is a key feature of Mayor Curry's Mayorthon initiative. Every month, the City hosts an invigorating walk in one of its parks. Additionally, JaxParks has a dozen parks with paved walking paths and five parks with running tracks that you can use to meet the mayor's challenge to citizens to walk or run 26.2 miles each month.

Journey to One's community health focus offers citywide resources that support our collective well-being including public safety, blight remediation and efforts to address food disparities by making fresh produce available in underserved areas of Jacksonville. Fifty-eight local fire stations currently offer free blood pressure checks and Journey to One continues to engage community partners to expand opportunities for citizens to have access to free health screenings.

"Improving from 48 to number one is no small task," Mayor Curry notes. "With the support and resources of these partners, we will succeed with the Journey to One."

When school ends, summer fun begins

Just because the school day comes to an end doesn't mean your child's learning and development must stop. With fun and exciting activities to stimulate both the mind and body, our after-school programs offer a variety of opportunities for youngsters and teens to learn and grow in positive and nurturing surroundings.

With programs featuring everything from homework help, to arts and crafts, to recreational sports and games, you're sure to find positive activities designed to keep your child engaged and motivated in a safe, supervised environment.

Club Rec

This exciting and energizing after-school program provides opportunities for youth to participate in group activities including crafts, games, recreational sports, cooking activities, special events and homework assistance.

Splash with us

When it comes to health and wellness, swimming is a great activity for several reasons. For starters, swimming is a whole-body workout that uses all of your major muscle groups and can help improve your cardiovascular health. Best of all, swimming is a lifetime sport. It is a low-impact exercise that people of all ages and activity levels can enjoy. The keys are having the proper place to swim and knowing how to stay safe in the water. JaxParks can help you with both. Not only do we offer swim lessons and aquatics programs from toddlers to adults, you can choose from 33 outdoor pools during the summer months (Memorial Day Weekend through Labor Day) and the Cecil Aquatic Center, an indoor facility offering activities year-round.

Enjoy summer adventures

Summer camps typically feature fun activities like games, sports and art. You'll certainly find all of those activities at JaxParks this summer. However, considering the unique resources and amenities of our wonderfully diverse park system, you can experience even more unique adventures in JaxParks. Your children will be able to explore the beaches and learn to surf at our Ocean Camp. Or go fishing on the St. Johns River at a Day-Enrichment Camp. They can even take their first tennis lessons at a Tennis Camp, where instruction will be geared to your child's specific skill level.

Camps are offered in three two-week sessions:

Session 1	June 19 – June 30, 2017
Session 2	July 3 – 14*, 2017
Session 3	July 17 – 29, 2017

Camps will be closed Tuesday, July 4, in honor of Independence Day.*

Summer Camp Vouchers

Financial vouchers are available for qualifying families participating in JaxParks' Day-Enrichment Camp. The vouchers are limited and will be provided through a lottery system.

Attendance at any one of seven voucher verification events is required to obtain a lottery ticket. Participants will need to bring all relevant paperwork to these events. Details on what is required are available online at jaxparks.com.

Voucher Lottery Date: April 27, 2017

Parks Directory

Jacksonville is a model city for the NPS Urban Agenda Initiative

The National Park Service (NPS) is celebrating its 100th birthday by looking ahead to its next century and that forward-thinking approach directly benefits JaxParks and the community. Jacksonville is one of just 10 U.S. cities – and the only city in the Southeast – designated as a model city for the NPS Urban Agenda initiative.

The Urban Agenda, which coincides with the NPS's centennial celebration, is all about building relationships, forging partnerships and identifying resources that help connect local, state and national parks to the next generation of park visitors and supporters. In receiving the model city designation, Jacksonville joins Boston, Detroit, New York, Philadelphia, Richmond (Virginia), Richmond (California), St. Louis, Tucson and Washington, D.C.

“While we celebrate the achievements of the past 100 years, this effort is really about ensuring our national, state and local parks; public lands; and public waters are relevant to all Americans in the next century,” said U.S. Secretary of the Interior Sally Jewell, whose department oversees the NPS.

The job of engaging potential partners, seeking funding and expertise, and connecting to a new generation of park patrons belongs to the Urban Fellows assigned to each model city. Nathan Souder, an NPS park ranger, is the Urban Fellow devoted to Jacksonville.

“The majority of my time is trying to understand community needs and then designing programming and structure so that ultimately it can increase relevancy,” Souder said.

Created on August 25, 1916 when President Woodrow Wilson signed the act establishing it, the National Park Service was initially responsible for 35 national parks and monuments. Today, the NPS system includes 412 areas including parks, monuments, historic sites, recreation areas and more across 84-million acres. The NPS presence in Jacksonville includes the Timucuan Ecological and Historic Preserve, a natural and cultural resource considered to be one of the Atlantic coast’s last unspoiled expanses of wetlands. The Timucuan Preserve also includes Fort Caroline.

Right now, national parks are enjoying record attendance, according to Souder. However, the demographic of current park goers doesn’t match the changing demographic of America, which includes more people of color and more people living in urban areas. As it turns 100, NPS recognizes the need to broaden its appeal to new and more diverse audiences.

“We need to become part of the community, which means we need to go outside of the park,” Souder said. “We need to go to the people and learn from them. We want to be part of the community as opposed to something that’s adjacent to it that people come and visit.”

2016

National Park Service CENTENNIAL

One way you can help celebrate the National Park Service’s 100th anniversary is by joining its #FindYourPark campaign. The campaign encourages you to discover what parks have to offer and share your own experiences on social media. Whether it’s a local, state or national park, post a video explaining why your park is special to you.

FIND YOUR PARK

Let nature teach you something new today

Living in Jacksonville, you have the opportunity to explore and enjoy the largest urban park system in the country. Our Environmental Education programs offer you and your family in-depth and eye-opening experiences to help you learn about many of the plant, animal and nature elements that make our parks so exciting and wonderful. From snakes, spiders and bats, to wildflowers and beaches, you can learn about our area's natural treasures present and past through both outdoor activities and indoor programs. Participants should dress for the weather, wear closed toe shoes and bring insect repellent and water. For information on programs or to schedule field trips please call (904) 573-2498. Please note that programs may be cancelled due to unforeseen circumstances. JaxParks also maintains 15 Environmental Parks throughout Duval County providing more opportunities for exploration and adventure. You'll find a complete list on page 38.

Indoor Programs

Activities and workshops that span the gamut of our great outdoors presented indoors. For information on programs or to schedule field trips please call (904) 573-2498. Please note that programs may be cancelled due to unforeseen circumstances.

Meet Jacksonville's urban fellow, Nathan Souder

Read more about the National Park Service Urban Agenda on page 32.

A native Midwesterner, Nathan Souder enjoyed lots of family vacations in Florida as a child but he had never visited Jacksonville.

“When this opportunity became available, I really knew nothing about Jacksonville. I think I had heard the name but only because of the (Jacksonville) Jaguars, to be honest,” Souder said. “Once I started looking into (JaxParks) and learned that it was the largest urban parks system in the country, I thought, ‘Why have I never heard of Jacksonville?’”

However, in preparing for his assignment, the more he learned about our community, the more he saw big potential.

“I took this job because the opportunity was so great,” Souder said. “Now, it’s a matter of finding the right opportunities and finding the right people who can move things forward.”

Those opportunities include not only resources in the form of local, state and federal park sites like the Timucuan Ecological and Historic Preserve, but also in the form of partners focused on youth development, culture, historic preservation and the environment. Additionally, NPS has more than 40 programs, including funding and consulting resources, designed to help local communities.

Souder said it’s critical to create relationships and initiatives “built on rock, not sand” so that progress continues beyond his initial two-year assignment.

However, Souder added that it’s also important to stay open to new trends. A great example is the Pokémon Go craze that’s drawing many first-time visitors to parks and other public places.

“We weren’t relevant to part of society until the game came out and people came to the park to play it. Because Fort Caroline is a public, free park with exhibits, it has become a popular place to capture creatures using the app. We are now relevant to this new group of visitors,” Souder said. “To me, that’s exactly what we’re talking about. If visitors are outside and they’re moving and there’s an opportunity to engage a new population in a mode and a medium that’s comfortable to them, that’s what we have to do.”

For Souder, the Park Service’s goal to act as “One National Park Service” is a collaborative approach that fits perfectly with Mayor Lenny Curry’s vision for “One City. One Jacksonville.”

“The National Park Service is more than the sum of its parks,” Souder explained. “We want to be part of the community.”

PARKVENER HUNT

How many buttons are visible on the sailor's jacket at the Jacksonville Navy Memorial, and what nautical icon decorates them?

Fill in the blanks of this quote from the base of the "Bullet" Bob Hayes statue: God ____ his feet, put a ____ in his soul and gave him a ____ to speak to the world.

Who is this historic home named after and why was this person important?

Explore the beauty and history of our parks

The gazebo located in Yacht Basin Park (also known as “Mom’s Park”) in the Riverside/Avondale neighborhood is more than a shelter from the hot Florida sun or sudden afternoon rain shower – it’s an intricate piece of art! Avondale artist Kate Garcia Rouh has used small pieces of colored glass, stone and ceramic to craft a whimsical 360-degree mosaic. If you count carefully you’ll find 14 koi fish swimming among the myriad flora and fauna that decorate this outdoor space. It’s just one of many sculptures and historic landmarks that can be found in Jacksonville’s parks. Complete our park themed scavenger hunt to experience some more of our favorite waymarks. You can check your answers on page 122.

Which Jacksonville park does this big cat call home?

There's a historic marker sign steps away from this statue in Balis Park. What does the sign say inspired the layout of San Marco Square?

Desoto Park

3970 Baltic St. - 32210

Neighborhood: Ortega

Acres: 0.4

Desoto Park resides in the Ortega neighborhood (platted in 1909) of southwest Jacksonville. It was one of four circular parks created along Park Avenue (now Baltic Street) and named after New World explorers. The Ortega Elementary School opened across the street in 1923 and the park served as a school playground and neighborhood park. The park is named for Hernando de Soto (1496-1542), the Spaniard who explored southeast America after landing at Tampa Bay in 1539. In 1950, the Ortega Co. donated the western portion of the park to the School Board for use by the school and dedicated the middle portion to the City for the extension of Baltic Street.

Dinsmore Boat Ramp

6800 Dunn Ave. - 32219

Neighborhood: Dinsmore

Acres: 2.6

The Dinsmore Boat Ramp and Playground is located along the Trout River in the Dinsmore area of northwest Jacksonville, near the intersection of Dunn Ave. and New Kings Rd. In the early 1900's, dairy farming became the principal industry in Dinsmore. Prior to creation of the boat ramp/playground area, which was developed as a Duval County facility sometime between 1956 and 1965, a bridge crossed the Trout River at the site and connected Dunn Avenue before the road was later re-routed. The boat ramps provide direct access to the upper portions of the Trout River and are well utilized by boats less than twenty-two feet in length.

Earl Johnson Memorial Park

5308 St. Augustine Rd. - 32207

Neighborhood: Lakewood

Acres: 56.2

Earl M. Johnson Memorial Park is located between Emerson St. and University Blvd. on the Southside. After the Civil War, much of the area was settled by African-American families and the community became known as Pine Forest (also Larsen). Most of the land was donated to the City in 1976 and utilized as the former Stetson Road Landfill. The park was created by 1990 and named 1816. His grandson, Napoleon Bonaparte Broward Jr., later served as governor of Florida from 1905-1909. The park's original name derives from Harts Road, built around 1840 by Jacksonville's founder Isaiah D. Hart from Jacksonville to the St. Marys River and also from the town of Harts Road (now Yulee) situated along its route. Robert F. King and the Montgomery Land Co. donated the site to the City in 2001. The park's name was changed in June 2007 to honor Ms. Napoleon, a resident of the nearby Turtle Creek Village neighborhood who lobbied for the park and was very active in the civic affairs of the community prior to her death.

PARK SERVICE

Explore the Timucuan Ecological & Historic Preserve

The centennial kicks off a second century of stewardship of America's national parks and engaging communities through recreation, conservation, and historic preservation programs. We invite you celebrate this historic occasion by taking a day to get to know the national park that's in your own backyard -- the Timucuan Ecological & Historic Preserve.

Established in 1988, this 46,000-acre preserve includes Fort Caroline National Memorial, the Theodore Roosevelt Area, Kingsley Plantation, Cedar Point, and thousands of acres of woods, water and salt marsh. Operated under a partnership agreement by the National Park Service, Florida State Park System, the City of Jacksonville, and more than 300 private and corporate landowners, it was created as a National Park unit in 1988 and is named for the Timucua, the native people who lived along the waterways in northeast Florida.

Much of the Preserve is undeveloped salt marsh accessible only by boat, but there are several sites in the Preserve open to visitors wishing to learn more about this area's natural and cultural history. The ecosystems within the Timucuan Preserve are among the most productive in the world and provide a glimpse of what "Old Florida" was like.

- Explore Fort Caroline National Memorial and learn about the lives and deaths of 16th-century French colonists.
- Walk among live oaks and thickets of palmettos where pre-Columbian and Timucua Indians once lived.
- Visit a plantation where enslaved men, women, and children of African descent labored, raised families, worshipped, celebrated, and mourned.
- Hike the Theodore Roosevelt Trail and climb the wildlife observation platform overlooking the salt marsh habitat.
- Find tranquility in a day at the beach, ride a segway or wind your way by kayak through the marshy expanse.

Fort Caroline National Memorial

Home of the Timucuan Preserve Visitor Center, this park memorializes the site of a 16th-century French colony – the first European settlement in the area. Open daily 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., closed Thanksgiving, New Year's Day and Christmas Day. Free admission. 12713 Ft. Caroline Rd. (904) 641-7155.

Kingsley Plantation

Located on historic Ft. George Island within the Timucuan Preserve, this site includes the oldest standing plantation house in Florida and the remains of original tabby slave cabins. Open daily 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., closed Thanksgiving, New Year's Day and Christmas Day. Ranger talks offered daily. Free admission. Located off Hwy A1A just north of the St. Johns River ferry. (904) 251-3537.

Theodore Roosevelt Area

This 600-acre natural area within the Timucuan Preserve has over 5 miles of hiking trails winding through one of North Florida's most pristine areas. Summer hours: 6 am to 8 pm; Winter hours: 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. Closed Thanksgiving, New Year's Day and Christmas Day. Free admission. Located 1.5 miles southeast of the entrance to Fort Caroline National Memorial. (904) 641-7155.

Fletcher Park

1652 Atlantic Blvd. - 32207

Neighborhood: San Marco

Acres: 1.5

Fletcher Park is located along Atlantic Boulevard, in the San Marco section of South Jacksonville, which from 1907-1932 was a separate municipality. First known as Belote Green, for prominent South Jacksonville politician William Belote, the park was established in 1918 (during World War I) as part of Fletcher Park, a federal housing development created to provide homes for workers that were building naval ships at the nearby Merrill Stevens Shipyard. Prominent architect Henry Klutho designed Fletcher Park, which was named for Florida's U.S. Senator Duncan U. Fletcher (1859-1936), a Jacksonville resident who served continuously for 27 years. Later, the park also became known as Fletcher Park, which has seen many improvements since the San Marco Preservation Society formed in 1975, such as re-location of the old St. Paul's Episcopal Church building to the grounds in 1994 and the Stockton Cottage in 2003.

Florida C. Dwight Memorial Playground

1199 W Church St. - 32204

Neighborhood: Mixon Town

Acres: 2.5

The park comprised a portion of the Town of La Villa, which was subdivided and incorporated after the Civil War and remained independent until annexed by Jacksonville in 1887. After the City purchased the land in 1904, it became a park for the area's white residents known as La Villa Park. In 1929, the City's second playground for African-American children was established there and named La Villa Playground. Florida Dwight (1886-1977), the playground's first recreation director, pioneered organized recreation for the City's African-American community from 1918 (with the opening of Oakland Park) until her retirement in 1950. To honor her years of devoted work, the playground was renamed in 1983 and then designated a local historic landmark in 1995.

Goodby's Creek Preserve

9145 San Jose Blvd. - 32257

Neighborhood: Craven

Acres: 34.1

Goodby's Creek is a tributary of the St. Johns

River, roughly dividing the Jacksonville communities of San Jose and Mandarin. When surveyed in 1792 for Francis Goodwin, the stream was known as Azza Creek, later to be known as Goodmans Lake, Goodbys Lake and Goodbys Creek. During the latter twentieth century, tremendous residential and commercial development occurred around the creek, prompting the City and its non-profit partner, The Trust for Public Land, to seek preservation of the site. In January 2002, the Trust acquired 39 acres along the southernmost point of Goodby's Creek and later that month deeded it to the City, which purchased the property with Preservation Project funds. It has a conservation easement on the property preventing future development.

Helen Cooper Floyd Park, aka "Little Jetties"

3600 SR A1A - 32233
Neighborhood: Mayport
Acres: 78.1

Helen Cooper Floyd Park is located on a peninsula southwest of Mayport, at the convergence of the Intracoastal Waterway and the St. Johns River. In 1830, bar pilots and fishermen established the village that eventually became Mayport. The park property was known for decades as the Little Jetties. The City leased the property from the Navy, made improvements and shortly thereafter the park was dedicated in November 1992. Around the first part of 1999, the park was renamed. A Mayport native, Helen Cooper Floyd (1922-1998) was a schoolteacher, journalist and historical researcher and writer. After moving with her family to Pascagoula, Mississippi around 1963, she eventually compiled and wrote two booklets and a book about the folk history of Mayport. Little Jetties Park is currently closed during construction of the Mile Point Project by USACE. It should reopen in 2017.

Get Healthy in the Park with Your Pets

Jacksonville has one of the largest and most diverse urban park systems in the nation, with more than 400 park and recreational sites for citizens to enjoy, including the furry ones! One of those parks is Fort Caroline National Memorial, the first of Jacksonville's parks to host the National Bark Ranger program. The Bark Ranger program, administered by the National Park Service, is a community outreach effort that allows local dogs (and their human companions) to become park ambassadors helping promote Jacksonville's dog-friendly parks and what we can do to make them an enjoyable and safe experience for everyone.

Participation in the Bark Ranger program includes learning how to hike safely in the park with a pet and committing to the park pet policy rules of B.A.R.K.

- Bag your poop
- Always wear a leash
- Respect wildlife
- Know where you can go

Davi the Dachshund is one of Fort Caroline National Memorial's Bark

Rangers who has been on the job since October 2015. He earned his Bark Ranger badge at a canine event called Bark for Life. "I enjoy watching my dog explore the natural beauty of these parks and wear his Bark Ranger tag with pride," said Rebecca Miller (Davi's human). "Davi and I love walking the trails at Fort Caroline National Memorial Park. We both like the challenge of the steep inclines and rugged terrain. It's a fun way to spend the day together!"

Another thing that makes Fort Caroline National Memorial so special is its place in history. One of the oldest parks in Jacksonville, it memorializes the French presence during 16th century Florida. Located a short distance from the southern bank of the St. Johns River, the park offers walking trails, play areas, history tours, youth programs, community events and much more. It is also home to a full-scale model of the original Fort de la Caroline that is maintained by the National Park Service. Admission to Fort Caroline National Memorial (12713 Fort Caroline Road) is free and it is open 9 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., seven days a week.

Huguenot Park

3145 Nain Rd. - 32207
 Neighborhood: Spring Park
 Acres: 1.7
 The Huguenots were French Protestants of the 16th and 17th centuries. In 1562, a group of Huguenots led by Jean Ribault, sailed across the Atlantic Ocean to the mouth of the St. Johns River and European colonization of the Jacksonville area began. Huguenot Park resides on Jacksonville's Southside, near the intersection of Spring Park Road and Emerson Street. John and Joanna Hunter donated the property to the City in 1952, with the stipulation that it be used for a park and named as a memorial to the Huguenots. The park was undeveloped in 1969, but by 1977 it had been completely fenced and contained a baseball field.

Jacksonville Arboretum and Gardens

1445 Milcoe Rd. - 32225
 Neighborhood: Arlington
 Acres: 121.1
 From around 1944 to 1961, the Humphries Gold Mining Company operated strip mines in this area of Jacksonville, harvesting zircon and other minerals required for the production of titanium. After mining ended, the property became an urban wild and illegal dump site. The City of Jacksonville purchased the property for use as a passive recreation and open space buffer for a nearby wastewater treatment plant during the 1970s and it was left untouched for thirty years. During this time 13 distinct ecosystems developed, including fresh water and tidal marshes, upland hardwood forest, pine flatwoods and dry prairie, bottomland forest and live oak hammock. In 2004, a group of conservation-minded nature lovers recognized the site's value and began discussions with the City to lease the property for recreational use as an arboretum. The Jacksonville Arboretum and Gardens officially opened to the public in November 2008. Alligators, snakes, lizards, foxes, squirrels, turtles and armadillo make their home at JAG, as well as quail, pheasants, osprey, owls and smaller birds. All of the trails, benches, board walks and picnic tables in the arboretum were built by volunteers from the community.

Jessie Ball DuPont Park

1207 Prudential Dr. - 32207
 Neighborhood: Southside
 Acres: 2.7
 Jessie Ball duPont Park, home of the Treaty Oak, is located in the Southbank area. In the 1930s, the Garden Club, Mrs. Jessie duPont, and a Times Union reporter, Pat Moran, began efforts to preserve the tree. Moran coined the name Treaty Oak while writing a fictitious story about how white settlers and Indians met under the tree to sign peace treaties. Mrs. duPont and the Alfred I. duPont Foundation purchased the land containing the tree around 1934 and donated it to the City in 1964. The City acquired the remainder of the property between 1964 and 1971, the year the park was named in honor of Jessie duPont (1884-1970), an ardent philanthropist and part-time Jacksonville resident.

 Neighborhood: Ortega Forest
 Acres: 7.5
 The park is located at the John Stockton Elementary School in the Ortega Forest section of Jacksonville, which comprised part of a large plantation that was named Ortega in 1804. The original Ortega subdivision was platted in 1909 by the Ortega Company headed by John N.C. Stockton (1857-1922), but it was not until 1946 that the development of Ortega Forest began during the postwar migration to the suburbs. Built in 1955, the school was named for Mr. Stockton, who is best remembered for his devoted public service. He worked tirelessly distributing relief funds during the yellow fever epidemic of 1888, chaired the Board of Public Works through the financial crisis of 1893 and after the Great Fire of 1901, and often gave of his time and means to his fellow citizens.

Joseph Lee Center

5120 Perry St. - 32208
Neighborhood: Brentwood
Acres: 1

The ultramodern building opened as a Teen Center in October 1962, and the City provided supervised recreation and held weekend dances for teenagers. The facility soon evolved into a community center for all age groups. The Center was named for Joseph Lee (1862-1937), considered the father of the American playground movement. After creating his own Boston playground in the early 1890s, he observed and recorded the results. Lee then championed playgrounds in articles, books, and speeches across America, and served for 27 years as president of the organization that became the National Recreation Association in 1930.

Julington Durbin Creek Preserve

13130 Bartram Park Blvd. - 32223

Neighborhood: Julington Creek

Acres: 2023.9

The area is located on a peninsula formed at the confluence of Julington and Durbin creeks, and has approximately nine miles of shoreline along the two creeks. The peninsula is a long sandy ridge that grades into floodplain swamp and marsh along the creeks' shores. Natural communities consist of sandhill along the higher areas near the center of the peninsula and flatwoods at the lower elevations. The preserve contains extensive floodplain wetlands, providing water quality and floodplain protection for both creeks and the St. Johns River. Known wildlife at the preserve include: bald eagle, osprey, gopher tortoise, bobcat, turkey, deer, and numerous species of wading and songbirds. Manatees seasonally swim in both creeks. Recreational activities include: hiking, picnicking, horseback riding, bicycling, and nature study.

Landon Park

1800 San Marco Blvd. - 32207
 Neighborhood: San Marco
 Acres: 0.8
 Landon Park, in the San Marco section of the City, takes its name from the John and Mary Landon family who moved to the area in 1867. Their daughter Julia became the teacher for South Jacksonville's first school, and she taught continuously for 36 years until her retirement in 1919. After the area's first high school was constructed in 1926-27, on the site of her old home, it was named Landon High School in her honor. The original park was established on the 1925 plat of the San Marco subdivision, and it more than doubled in size by the closing of an adjacent street and an additional land purchase in 1939. The nearby commercial district was modeled after St. Mark's Square in Venice.

Lannie Road Park

3461 Lannie Rd. - 32218
 Neighborhood: Forest Trails
 Acres: 166.9
 Lannie Road Park is situated in upper northwestern Jacksonville, near the portion of Thomas Creek that separates Duval and Nassau counties. The City's 1425-acre Thomas Creek Preserve is also located in the area. The property comprised part of a tract purchased by the City in 1972 for use as a correctional facility by the Sheriff's Office. In 1992, 60 acres of the site (which was undeveloped land of the Montgomery Correctional Center) were used for creation of the park, as a home for the Gateway Radio Control Club. The Club operates a flying field for radio-controlled, miniature airplanes. Its facilities--which include a covered pavilion with picnic tables and workbenches, taxiways, a runway, and a clubhouse--are open to the public. Weekend classes are provided for beginners.

Liberty Park

1938 Liberty St. - 32206
 Neighborhood: Springfield
 Acres: 0.7
 Liberty Street, which was named in Jacksonville's founding year of 1822, had previously been known as Ferry Road, because the ferry across the St. Johns River to the south bank operated at the southern terminus of the street. In 1929, the City accepted a donation of the park property, which resided adjacent to the Corinne Scott Elementary School that was built in 1926. The park was created sometime between 1929 and 1942, and possesses the same amenities today that it did in 1974. The school closed in 1991 and in recent years has been renovated into apartments targeting middle-income, urban professionals. This two-story building and several old oak trees along the perimeter enhance the setting of Liberty Park.

Lift Ev'ry Voice & Sing Park

120 N Lee St. - 32204
 Neighborhood: LaVilla
 Acres: 0.25
 On September 10, 2013, the City of Jacksonville designated the James Weldon and John Rosamond Johnson Birth Site, located at the northwest corner of Lee and Houston Streets as a landmark site; and named it the Lift Ev'ry Voice and Sing Park. The property was the location of the family home of James Weldon Johnson and his brother John Rosamond Johnson, in which both brothers were born, raised and lived during a significant portion of their lives; and is also the location where the brothers composed Lift Every Voice and Sing, originally composed to commemorate Abraham Lincoln's birthday but later became known as the Negro National Anthem. James Weldon Johnson later attained additional national prominence by being appointed the United States Consul to Venezuela and Nicaragua; and likewise, John Rosamond Johnson went on to achieve additional notoriety in the vaudeville scene by composing or assisting in more than 200 musical compositions made popular through vaudeville performances in New York's Broadway Boulevard venues and Carnegie Hall.

Powers Park

3153 Green St. - 32205
 Neighborhood: Murray Hill
 Acres: 13.2
 The City established the park soon after purchasing a three-block tract from Arthur M. Powers in 1929. A Riverside resident, Mr. Powers was the Secretary-Treasurer of Sabel Brothers, a downtown wholesaler of shoes, shoemaker equipment, and leather goods. This park is a passive facility, without athletic or playground amenities. It provides a scenic, natural setting with many picturesque trees, and attractive green space for the area's residents.

Raymond E. Davis Park

3011 Spires St. - 32209
 Neighborhood: Mid Westside
 Acres: 0.9
 Local residents, led by City

Councilman Reggie Fullwood, actively sought a park for the area's children. The Jacksonville Electric Authority, which maintains a water treatment facility and electric substation at the site, donated the western portion of the property to the City in 2001 for use as a park. After its completion in 2002-2003, the facility was named Spires Street Park. Members of the Spires family were early settlers in the area. The City Council renamed the park in 2004 to honor the pastor of a nearby church for his service to the community, particularly its young people. In addition to a 16-year career as an occupational specialist with the School System, Reverend Davis served on the Board of Directors of the Boys and Girls Club of Northeast Florida and the Johnson Branch of the YMCA.

River Oaks Park

1000 River Oaks Rd. - 32207
 Neighborhood: Miramar
 Acres: 10.3

The Works Progress Administration (WPA), established by President Franklin Roosevelt in 1935 to provide public service jobs for the unemployed during the Great Depression, supplied the labor and most of the funding to create the park, which opened in 1940. Portions of the grounds form a flood plain, with areas of natural wetlands. Groups such as Greenscape of Jax and the Audubon Society have worked to enhance the park, whose stately trees and lawn provide a natural landscape and visual enjoyment for the residents and passing pedestrians and motorists.

Riverfront Park

901 Landon Ave. - 32207
 Neighborhood: San Marco
 Acres: 0.5

Riverfront Park is located on a fifteen-foot, one-block strip of land along the St. Johns River in San Marco, between Landon Avenue and La Verne Street. For decades the park's bulkhead has been a favorite spot for local fishermen and manatees have been seen surfacing near the shore. The river view and cooling breezes bring out the visitors with folding chairs and on winter evenings, when the river sunsets are most beautiful, people congregate at the park to enjoy the view.

Riverside Park

753 College St. - 32204
 Neighborhood: Riverside
 Acres: 11.4

Riverside Park is Jacksonville's second-oldest park, established in the early 1890's. Workers created walk paths, a carriage lane, and two spring-fed lakes that were stocked with ducks. Ornamental stone bridges and camphor trees further beautified the landscape, which became one of the South's loveliest parks by 1907. Other past amenities included a bandstand and tennis courts, and the Men's Garden Club and the city created a camellia garden on the grounds in 1967. Following several years of improvements initiated by Riverside Avondale Preservation (RAP), disaster struck the park in 1997, when a savage storm devastated the grounds. Fifty-two trees were lost, but the city and RAP worked diligently to restore this Riverside landmark.

Seminole Park

4170 McGirts Blvd. - 32210

Neighborhood: Ortega

Acres: 2.3

Seminole Park is adjacent to the Ortega River (formerly McGirts Creek). In 1909, the Ortega Company, founded by John N. C. Stockton and Charles C. Bettes, began development of the subdivision, which was designed by the prominent architect Henry J. Klutho. Like many of the streets in Ortega, the park is named for an Indian tribe, the Seminoles of Florida. Often home to such activities as flag football games, karate classes, and even weddings, the park also contains a marker that tells the history of the notorious bandit Daniel McGirtt, a resident of Ortega from long ago. The picturesque grounds of Seminole Park gently slope from McGirts Boulevard to the river, adding to the charm of Old Ortega, which was designated a Historic District and added to the National Register of Historic Places in 2004.

St. Nicholas Train Station Park

2564 Atlantic Blvd. - 32207

Neighborhood: Spring Park

Acres: 0.5

Where the St. Johns River narrows near downtown Jacksonville was called "Pass de San Nicolas" by the Spanish, and the lovely village of St. Nicholas later evolved in the area after the Civil War. After the Florida East Coast Railway Co. took over the train service from South Jacksonville to the beaches in 1899, a depot was built in St. Nicholas. It served the area until the railroad ceased operations in 1932, and was moved to the park in 2004 for restoration and use by the St. Nicholas Business Association. Traymore Road separates the park into two expanses of lawn, each with a nice canopy of trees along the rear portion. Park was renamed from Traymore Park to the St. Nicholas Train Station Park in 2008.

Sunny Acres

2850 Wompi Dr. - 32225

Neighborhood: Regency

Acres: 9.1

Created on County-owned land as a park for handicapped children, it was planned and funded by the Motion Picture Charity Club, a local organization composed of individuals that distributed and exhibited motion pictures. After the official opening in June 1964, the park was named by the children. Of special note have been summer camps for the handicapped, and the dedicated work of countless volunteers. Programs for disabled adults, which included recreational and life-skills instruction and some vocational training, were added later. As handicapped exclusive programs were phased out at the park in 1996, the City began an innovative recreation program for children who are being educated at home instead of attending a school. The popular home school program has spread from Sunny Acres to other City parks.

Thomas Creek Preserve & Fish Camp

17200 Ethel Rd. - 32218
Neighborhood: Jax. North Estates
Acres: 1467.8

The Thomas Creek Preserve is located in upper northwestern Jacksonville, near and along Thomas Creek, which divides a portion of Duval and Nassau Counties. The southernmost battle of the American Revolutionary War, and the only one fought in present-day Duval County, took place at Thomas Creek on May 17, 1777. Most of the land was owned at one time by members of the Ogilvie family, who originally settled in the area from Scotland in the mid-1800's and established the Ogilvie Cemetery near the Preserve. During the period from 1999 to 2002, the City and the St. Johns River Water Management District purchased the property as part of Preservation Project Jacksonville. The site comprises part of the 46,000-acre Timucuan Ecological and Historic Preserve that was first established in 1988.

Tidewater Acres Park

7144 Berry Avenue - 32211
Neighborhood: Woodland Acres
Acres: 0.3
Tidewater Acres Park is located in east Jacksonville, two blocks north of Atlantic Blvd. adjacent to the Tidewater Acres subdivision. The name Tidewater likely derives from the tributaries of the Arlington River that flow through the area, such as Pottsburg and Silversmith Creeks. The park is part of the large Oakwood Villas neighborhood platted in 1910 by Walter C. Warrington (1879-1965), whose family retained title to the park property until 1989. Following a Mayor's Neighborhood Summit, residents contacted City Council member Lynette Self about a park, resulting in the City's purchase of the land in 2002 and the park's construction in Jan.-Apr. 2004. Situated next to the Whiteway Club, a homemaker's organization begun in 1927, the park has been popular with the area residents since opening.

Tillie K. Fowler Regional Park

7000 Roosevelt Blvd. - 32244
Neighborhood: Ortega Hills
Acres: 505
Remnants of a 16-foot wide old brick road linked Ortega to Jacksonville pre-dates 1917 but was heavily used when Camp Johnston was built as part of the preparations to train American troops during World War I. The road can be found at several locations in the park. In 2005 the park was renamed for Tillie K. Fowler. Tillie was a true "steel magnolia" -- a woman of impeccable grace and civility who was tenacious and fearless in her advocacy on behalf of issues important to the City of Jacksonville and the needs of the United States' armed forces, particularly the U.S. Navy.

Walter Jones Historical Park

11964 Mandarin Rd. - 32223

Neighborhood: Mandarin

Acres: 11.1

Major William Webb purchased 31.2 acres on the St. Johns River in Mandarin in 1873. He built a home, barn and 1,000-foot dock extending into the St. Johns River. Walter Jones, proprietor of the Mandarin Store and Post Office, moved his family to the homestead in the early 1900s and his family members occupied the property until 1992. The City of Jacksonville acquired approximately 10 acres of Major Webb's original homestead from the descendants of Walter Jones in 1994 for the purpose of creating the city's first historical park. The park opened to the public in August 2000 and includes the restored farmhouse, barn, outbuildings, sawmill, schoolhouse, nature trail along a riverfront boardwalk, picnic area and restrooms. The park and farmhouse are handicapped accessible. The Mandarin Museum & Historical Society operates the park facilities under a contract with the city.

William F. Sheffield Regional Park

3659 New Berlin Rd. - 32226

Neighborhood: The Cape

Acres: 336.3

Acquired in 2003, this former dairy site is currently in design for a regional park. At final build out, the park will contain soccer fields, baseball and softball facilities, a community center and pool, skateboard park and trails. Two large ponds compliment the site and will be used for small boating and fishing activities.

Willowbranch Park

2870 Sydney Street - 32205

Neighborhood: Riverside

Acres: 15.4

Willowbranch Park is located in the Riverside area, along the course of Willowbranch Creek.

Dr. Harold Hume donated 1700 azalea bushes around 1924 to beautify a portion of the grounds, while the Willowbranch Library opened at the park in 1930; and the creek was straightened and bulkheaded in 1934. Eventually four other small City parks/ gardens were created from the park property -- one south and one north of St. Johns Avenue and two along Park Street (in the 1950's). Since its creation in 1974, Riverside Avondale Preservation (RAP) has worked to preserve and improve the park, along with the Willowbranch Park Improvement Committee that formed in 1999. Through the years it has remained one of the City's most picturesque parks. At the instigation of Councilman Jim Overton in 2002, a bronze memorial plaque honoring Patricia Austin, the deceased wife of former mayor Ed Austin, was installed at the park in 2004. An immense live oak tree canopies two benches provided for the relaxation of visitors.

Willowbranch Rose Garden Park

2840 Park St. - 32205

Neighborhood: Riverside

Acres: 0.8

In 1955, members of the Jacksonville Rose Society established the Variety Rose Garden on this site. The Society and other volunteers (with the City's help) maintained the roses for many years.

However, eventually the garden deteriorated until in 1998 two teenage brothers, Adam and Joseph Bierce, took over restoration of the remaining garden. At the request of Riverside Avondale Preservation, the park name was changed in 2002, and today it contains two rose beds with timber borders, a bench for relaxing, and parking for approximately eight cars.

Wolfson High School Park and Pool

7000 Powers Ave. - 32217

Neighborhood: San Jose

Acres: 18.1

Members of the prominent Arthur Chester Skinner family deeded the land for the school to the School Board in 1962. The Skinners operated a dairy in the area for many years, and this land was known as "Skinner's Pasture". The school opened in 1965 and was named for Samuel W. Wolfson (1909-1963), noted industrialist, philanthropist, and sportsman. He served on the board of directors of Jacksonville University, Barnett National Bank, the Gator Bowl Association, and Jacksonville Charities, Inc. The Duval County School Board and the City of Jacksonville have a joint-use agreement for the pool, softball field, baseball field, football field, and track.

Yacht Basin Park

2941 St. Johns Ave. - 32205

Neighborhood: Riverside

Acres: 1.7

Yacht Basin Park is located in Riverside/Avondale on the west bank of Willowbranch Creek as it enters the St. Johns River. The City purchased the property in 1921, and Jacksonville's oldest social organization, the Florida Yacht Club established in 1877, resided adjacent to the site from 1907 till 1928. Eventually the City's Water Services Division (taken over by JEA in 1997) placed a pump station at the site, and JEA renovated the park in 2001 with landscaping, lighting, and the construction of a gazebo and a brick-paved plaza and walkway. A dedication plaque, which is titled "Mom's Park", was installed at the park in February 2004.

The Grant Award Agreement (GAA) requires kiosks, signage, picnic pavilions, a nature trail, a dirt bike trail, and a fitness trail. The GAA also requires the restoration of 120 acres of uplands and 11 acres of wetlands on the site. This park is not yet open to the public.

Yerkes Park

3927 McGirts Blvd. - 32210

Acres: 0.2

Yerkes Park is located in southwest Jacksonville and is part of the Ortega neighborhood that was designed by prominent architect, Henry J. Klutho. The triangular-shaped park is named for Captain Jonathan Yerkes Jr. (1918-1943), the son of a prominent local family who lived on Grand Avenue in Ortega. He was killed in action during WWII, while serving as an infantry officer in North Africa. The Yerkes family owned the well-known Florida Hardware Co. that began business in 1886. Yerkes Park is an integral part of Old Ortega, which was designated a Historic District and added to the National Register of Historic Places in 2004.

Looking for the answers to the JaxParks Parkvenger Hunt questions? YOU'VE FOUND THEM!

How many buttons are visible on the sailor's jacket at the Jacksonville Navy Memorial, and what nautical icon decorates them?

There are five visible buttons on the lone sailor's jacket (four on his right side and one on his left) and they are decorated with anchors.

Fill in the blanks of this quote from the base of the "Bullet" Bob Hayes statue: God ____ his feet, put a ____ in his soul and gave him a ____ to speak to the world.

The quote on the side of the "Passing the Torch" sculpture reads, "God sparked his feet, put flame in his soul and gave him a voice to speak to the world."

Which Jacksonville park does this big cat call home?

This jaguar is a full time resident at the Jacksonville Zoo, which is officially one of the city's parks! The City of Jacksonville contracts with the Jacksonville Zoological Society to manage all phases of the operation of the zoo. All property, including land, animals and equipment, belong to the city; in turn, the city contributes an annual subsidy to offset some of the zoo's operating expenses. All other zoo expenses are paid through revenues earned from admissions, concession sales, memberships, the Animal Care Club program, the Annual Fund, sponsorships, grants, and fundraising events.

What group of people is the iconic Life sculpture by Charles Adrian Pillars located in Memorial Park dedicated to and how many individuals were in that group?

"Life," the sculpture at the heart of Memorial Park, is dedicated to the 1,220 Floridians who died in service during World War I. Their names were inscribed on parchment and placed in a lead box within the bronze statue.

There's a historic marker sign steps away from this statue in Balis Park. What does the sign say inspired the layout of San Marco Square?

The design of San Marco Square was inspired by the Piazza San Marco in Venice, Italy, which Jacksonville real estate developer Telfair Stockton visited on a trip to Europe.

Who is this historic home named after and why was this person important?

The Napoleon Bonaparte Broward House is the former summer residence of Florida's 19th Governor Napoleon B. Broward (1857-1910). He is best known for his major project to drain the Everglades and recover land for agricultural cultivation. Located at 9953 Hecksher Drive on the North side of the St. Johns River, near the entrance to Kingsley Plantation, the Napoleon Bonaparte Broward House is part of the Timucuan Ecological and Historic Preserve and serves as the official headquarters of the nonprofit Timucuan Trail Parks Foundation (TTPF).
