II. Actuary's Report

a. Experience Study Summary

Pete Strong updated the FIAC on the results of the Experience Study. He reported that the Board of Trustees approved all recommended demographic assumption changes but modified the recommendation regarding the actuarial assumed rate of return.

Originally, the recommendation was to move from a 6.5% gross actuarial assumed rate of return to a 6.5% net rate. However, the Board elected to lower the rate further to 6.25% net, aligning with the capital market assumptions provided by the Fund's investment consultant, RVK.

Pete explained that GRS surveys capital market forecasts from 13 investment consulting firms, with RVK's assumptions ranking among the most conservative—second lowest overall—while most firms fall in the 6.5%–6.75% range. He stated that he supports the Board's decision to take a conservative approach.

Kendall Park asked whether the FIAC needed to approve the experience study.

Timothy Johnson clarified that no FIAC action was necessary, as the Board had already approved it. He recalled that when Pete Strong presented the study to both the FIAC and the Board in August, the Board was surprised by the recommendation to move to a net assumed rate. Lowering the rate would have increased the City's funding requirements, especially when combined with other demographic adjustments such as members living longer and earning higher salaries—factors that increase the plan's liability and cost.

Timothy explained that the Board requested further analysis, which led to the information presented today. Ultimately, he said that changing the rate was the Board's prerogative, and he believes they reached the right decision.

Pete Strong agreed, adding that he was satisfied with where the plan ended up at 6.25% net.

Timothy Johnson noted that, as a closed plan currently 41–42% funded, the PFPF expects the dedicated surtax revenues to begin flowing in about five years. He said this was the right move—putting more money into the plan now, and trusting the surtax to arrive as promised. He commended Pete for his diligent work on the study.

Pete concluded by noting that RVK is now incorporating all of the new assumption changes into the ongoing Asset-Liability Study.

Timothy reminded the FIAC about the ARES Manager Update Workshop scheduled for Wednesday at the PFPF Office and encouraged all members to attend. V. Investment Consultant Reports

a. Large Cap Growth Transition Analysis

Jordan Cipriani presented the Large Cap Growth Transition Analysis, commending both PFPF Staff and the RVK investment team for executing an orderly transition.

The transition consisted of a full redemption of approximately $185 million from Loomis Sayles Large Cap Growth and a partial redemption of about $82.5 million from Sawgrass Asset Management, which together funded the JP Morgan Large Cap Growth strategy.

RVK solicited competitive bids for transition management and selected LOOP Capital, which achieved the best combination of efficiency and economics. Transition costs were minimal—limited to commissions totaling $6,392—and there were no implicit costs. Jordan praised LOOP for being communicative and responsive throughout the process.

b. Monthly Investment Performance Analysis as of September 30, 2025

Jordan reviewed RVK's Monthly Investment Performance Analysis, providing the following market highlights:

- Global equities posted their sixth consecutive month of gains, led by emerging markets. Through Q3 2025, non-U.S. markets have notably outperformed domestic equities.
- Treasury rates declined overall, with long-duration assets outperforming both monthly and year-to-date.
- The FOMC reduced the Fed Funds Rate by 0.25%, signaling two additional cuts expected in 2025. Meanwhile, the 30-year U.S. Treasury yield fell 29 basis points, benefiting duration-sensitive assets.
- Q2 GDP was revised upward from 3.3% to 3.8%, driven primarily by strong consumer spending.

She then reviewed the Schedule of Investable Assets (page 5):

- Beginning Market Value: $2.82 billion
- Net Cash Flow: -$60.6 million
- Investment Gain: +$331.2 million
- Ending Market Value: $3.09 billion
- Fiscal Year Return: 11.77%, exceeding the assumed rate.

Timothy Johnson thanked Jordan for her report and noted that RVK will present the Asset-Liability Study to the FIAC and the Board of Trustees in November. He asked if RVK planned to provide an educational session beforehand.

Jordan and Spencer Hunter agreed, noting that a brief 30-minute educational primer would help the FIAC better understand the methodology and data presentation of the study, which differs from typical investment reports. Spencer added that such context is valuable since Asset-Liability Studies are conducted only once every five years or so and encompass the full scope of pension system management.
